30,000 MEN TO BE CALLED MONTHLY

Today's War Moves

By J. W. T. MASON
British United Press War Expert
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

REPORTS from Marseilles that German troops are being aligned along the Channel coast are being circulated simultaneously with a statement from Paris that Germany is concentrating on building up the Hitler war machine for invasion of Great Britain. Paris, likewise, says the Channel coastline is filled with military supply trucks, but there is confusion in the Paris reports.

Correspondents who have been visiting the area of movement are prohibited from mentioning which direction the trucks are going. If the trucks were moving from Germany into France, the direction would be taken for granted and would scarcely receive mention. It may be, therefore, that the trucks are carrying back into Germany supplies left behind by the British and French troops who retreated after the Flanders battle.

This assumption is strengthened

Overseas Forces Not To Be Increased At Present Raston Tells Commons

Outlines Policy

HON. J. L. RASTON, minister of national defence, who outlined the government's defence of Canada policy in the House of Commons Monday morning.

Defence Minister Gives Outline Of Government's Defence Policy—Modern Rifle Factory To Be Started

OTTAWA, July 30.—Defence Minister Raston told the House of Commons Monday that "the front line is the island fortress of the British Isles" and Canada "will shortly have a corps of two complete divisions and ancillary troops in that front line."

Outlining Canada's military program, Col. Raston said "My advisers are definitely of the opinion that it would not serve the common cause at this time to have additional Canadian forces added to such a corps. It must be remembered that there is at the moment no shortage of manpower in England. The real demand is for equipment."

(Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton is commander of the Canadian Corps overseas. The corps will consist of the 1st and 2nd Canadian divisions. The 1st division has been in England since December. The Canadian Corps in the first Great War started with two divisions and consisted of four divisions when the war finished.)

No Further C.A.S.F. Mobilization

Col. Raston also announced there would be no further immediate mobilization of units for the Canadian Active Service Force, that recruiting for the non-permanent active militia would be suspended from Aug. 15 and that thereafter men would enter the militia on call under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

Training of men called would start Oct. 1, and thereafter 30,000 a month would be called and trained.

Adjustments have been made in the departmental staff in order to utilize to the best advantage the abilities of the men available, said the minister. The organization of Canada's military defences was perhaps the most responsible job in the country and the principle of using the capabilities, experience and training of personnel to the best advantage would continue.

Trained And Equipped In Canada

Col. Raston said the 3rd and 4th divisions, now practically completed, would be trained and equipped in Canada.

The minister announced an eastern military command would be established in the maritime provinces with jurisdiction over all Canadian troops in that area and on outpost duty in Newfoundland, Iceland, the West Indies or elsewhere. The command would provide for defence against possible attack.

Modern Rifle Factory Is Planned

He also announced a large, modern rifle factory would be started in Canada and that 80 per cent of the machinery required for it had been obtained. This was only one of many measures being taken to make Canada self-contained in the matter of war supplies.

Bren machine gun production in Canada was a complete success, Col. Raston said. The 1st overseas division, originally equipped with Lewis guns in place of Bren guns, had now been issued the more up-to-date weapon and the productive capacity of the Bren gun plant was being stepped up.

Recruiting for the non-permanent active militia, now under way, will be suspended on August 15, the minister announced. Thereafter men will enter the militia as they are called under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

Men Called To Have Same Status

Men called for training under the act will have exactly the same status as men who enlist voluntarily prior to Aug. 15. They will receive the same pay at militia rates, (basis $1.20 a day for a private soldier), and will receive the same training and belong to the same units of the militia.

The call, he said, would probably go first to men of the ages of 21 and 22. Training for these classes will start Oct. 1, and thereafter 20,000 men would be called up each month.

They will be trained in 30 training centres accommodat-

Britain Drastically Tightens Blockade Of Axis Countries

By DAN CAMPBELL

British United Press. Exclusive Cable to the Edmonton Bulletin.

LONDON, July 30.—Great Britain today drastically tightened the naval blockade of the Axis powers by extending contraband control on both imports and exports to all ports of Europe and specified ports of North Africa and Atlantic islands.

The new blockade ruling means that all ships' cargoes from Europe from North and South America and the Far East must have navigation certificates issued by British authorities at the port of departure—or be liable to seizure.

The two-way blockade will thus affect such nations as Spain, Portugal and the Balkan states in an effort to prevent import of supplies that might be sent to Germany or Italy and to block exports sent from those nations into neutral territory.

PRIME MINISTER TELLS OF CANADA'S CHANGE INTO FIGHTING NATION

OTTAWA, July 30.—Canada's war ministers last night presented to the House of Commons a series of statements which Prime Minister Mackenzie King described as the record of a "remarkable transformation of a peace-loving people into a nation effectively organized to fight for its liberties."

The statements had been eagerly awaited throughout the day but were delayed by the prolongation of debate on the unemployment insurance bill which did not receive third reading until early in the evening.

NOT PARTY QUESTION

Members' benches and the public galleries were well filled as the prime minister introduced the statements with a brief general statement of his own. The statements were intended as a record of the achievements of a political party.

Unmarried Men 21 To 45 May Take Training

Canada Could Train Army Of 1,000,000 Men Under Compulsory Military Service System, Gardiner Tells Commons

OTTAWA, July 30.—Every unmarried man in Canada, medically fit and between the ages of 21 and 45 years, may be compelled to take 30 days military training within one year, War Services Minister Gardiner told the House of Commons today.

"There is no reason why Canada should not train an army of 1,000,000 men under this system and still operate her industry and primary production to meet demands upon it," said Mr. Gardiner.

His was the fifth statement on progress of the war effort and he dealt in detail with national registration to be conducted Aug. 19, 20, and 21 and the calling up of men for training.

Previously the house heard Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Defence Minister Raston, Air Minister Power and Munitions Minister Howe.

"It is possible," said Mr. Gardiner, "that requirements of the demobilization of national defence will be satisfied by the calling up of single men from 21 to 25 and it may not have to go beyond this in the first year."

"This factor depends on the result of the national registration and the number of men the department of national defence can train within one year."

Compulsory training of each class must be completed within a year of the time the class is called and it is

War Effort Highlights

OTTAWA, July 30.—Highlights of war statements given the Commons today by War Services Minister Gardiner and Munitions Minister Howe.

MR. GARDINER: All unmarried males in Canada between 21 and 45 years and physically fit may have to take 30 days' military training within one year.

Canada can train 1,000,000 men under this system and still operate industry and primary production.

Defence department requirements may be set by calling up during first year only those single men from 21 to 35 years.

Employers must furnish lists of male employees between 21 and 45 years and may submit plans for calling up employees in manner best suited to conducting business.

All employers must, under penalty, put employees back in job of equivalent position on completion of training period.

MR. HOWE: Canadian factories expected to produce airplanes at 260 a month early next year.

Mark III tanks to be produced at rate of 20 a month as soon as plant equipment is completed.

Artillery plant at a cost of $10,000,000 to be largest and most modern in British Empire.

Plans now under consideration at a cost of $20,000,000 will have productive capacity of 300,000 tanks a month of goods a year.

Shipbuilding program costing $50,000,000 is progressing satisfactorily.

Air training program increased to some 120 separate projects with addition of eight service flying training schools, 90 per cent of the projects originally planned to be finished by November.

Canada probably is producing greater volume of automotive equipment than any country in the world at 600 mechanized units a day.

CANADA SOON TO TURN OUT MANY PLANES

Will Produce 360 A Month Early In 1941, Howe Declares

OTTAWA, July 30.—Canadian factories are expected to turn out airplanes at the rate of 360 a month early in 1941, and "Mark III" tanks at the rate of 20 a month as soon as plant equipment is complete, Mr. Howe said.

His statement of his department's munitions and supply, told the House of Commons today.

In a number of the war work of his department Mr. Howe gave staggering figures of industrial expansion. Production of manufactured goods is now at an all-time peak but this will soon be surpassed, he said, combined with what it will be in six months.

The minister outlined plans for rifle and artillery plants to make weapons up to 25-pounder cannon and naval artillery. The latter plant to cost $10,000,000 but he largest and most modern in the British Empire.

MOTION MADE TO THROW OUT BILL ALBERTA'S BANK

OTTAWA, July 30.—The Commons committee on banking and commerce today recommended to the house that the bill to incorporate the Alberta Provincial Bank be thrown out. The action followed two weeks study by the committee, concluding with an opinion by the justice department that the bill was ultra vires.

In its report the committee declared "it was the opinion that the subject matter of the bill was such that it ought not to be enacted."

Following the vote on the adoption of the report with Norman James (N.D., Wetaskiwin), the only one voting against adop-

PARTIAL TEXT OF RALSTON'S SPEECH

OTTAWA, July 30.—Following is a partial text of Defence Minister Ralston's speech in the House of Commons Monday concerning the Canadian military situation:

I think it is important to have clearer thinking, greater confidence and more effective action if we understand the common broad principles of our defence policy. I conceive that there are two main aspects:

First, a short-term policy which is to combine, in maximum degree and in minimum time, with other countries in the present war, and this country, along with the United Kingdom and the other dominions is turning night into day activity to bring about their results.

LONG TERM ASPECT

Secondly, there is the long term aspect. It seems distant and relatively unimportant at the minute. But we must realize and prepare to meet the absolute necessity for a comprehensive and effective defence of our country, and we must be prepared as it can possibly be to take care of its own responsibilities in respect to defence.

Speaking generally, the method to be continued and intensified is the maximum development of all our resources in the present war. We are fully agreed regarding the general order of priority which should be considered in connection with our military preparations.

In the "immediate" category, I place the following:

MOST VULNERABLE AREA

First the re-strengthening and the adequate organization of our land and mobile defence and our armed forces in the north-eastern seaboard and of the approaches of the St. Lawrence. As this is our most vulnerable area, measures have been taken accordingly, and an accelerated command headquarters is being set up immediately in the Maritime, to organize the defence in co-ordination for operational purposes the forces in this area.

MAKE BEST USE

These will include the Canadian Active Service Force, which are permanent militia forces which are or will be located there. The object is to use them to the best advantage, in conjunction with the coast defence forces, wherever an attack may threaten, in connection with this command will be the Canadian forces in Newfoundland.

I need hardly say that at present, increased energies on the requirements of our east coast, it is not to be assumed for an indefinite period, continued strengthening of our west coast defences is being in any way overlooked.

Secondly, but of equal importance, and only secondary in the matter of immediate urgency, is the continued concentration of resources on the training and equipping of the Canadian Active Service Force, both on land and in the air.

Where these troops will eventually serve depends, of course, on the developments of the future.

CONTINUE TRAINING

In the meantime, our policy is to continue the training and equipping of these units eventually as divisions, so that they may be ready for operations in whatever theatre they may be required, either in Canada or overseas. The Canadian Active Service Force, both on land and in the air, and we will shortly have a corps of two complete divisions of military troops in that front line.

The house may be interested to know that it is the opinion of the military that it would not serve the common cause at this time to have the Canadian Active Service Force called to such a corps. It must be remembered that there is at the moment no shortage of trained troops in England. The real demand is for equipment.

EQUIPMENT NEEDED

I am giving away an secret when I state that it is impossible for the United Kingdom to make up in two or three weeks the losses of equipment suffered by the British Expeditionary Force during its epic struggle in, and subsequent withdrawal from, France.

Consequently, quite apart from any question of Canadian security, we can make our best contribution at the present by training and equipping our troops and sending them to the front line.

First, there is the Canadian Active Service Force. This is a force in which men of the age of from 18 to 45 years, both inclusive, are trained for full-time service and receive pay and allowances at C.A.S.F. rates. They are sent to Canada, outside of Canada, as required. The enlistment is for the duration of the war, and the demobilization period.

This force includes four divisions, which are organized into four corps, each with its own headquarters, and each with its own staff. They are organized into four divisions, which are organized into four corps, each with its own headquarters, and each with its own staff.

Secondly, we have the non-permanent active militia. We want to be ready as soon as possible to be able to take part in the defence of this country, and we want to be able to take part in the defence of this country, and we want to be able to take part in the defence of this country.

Consequently, the N.P.A.M. will consist of:

number of men which can be adequately equipped, trained and employed, my advisers are strongly of the opinion that on the basis of the present situation, it would be wise to increase the number of men on the active list of the C.A.S.F. by further extending mobilization at this time. They think that it is much more important to complete the equipping and training of our 3rd and 4th Divisions and develop them than to call up additional formations, which would be a waste of time and money until such time as they are made of use.

CONCUL IN CONCLUSION

My colleagues and I, after the most serious thought, concur in this conclusion, and I sincerely hope that the House and the country will accept our judgment.

This does not mean at all that there will not be further recruiting. Indeed there are at the moment places for some 15,000 in the authorized A.C.F. which will be further calls as men can be utilized. As these further calls are made, the country will be further called as men can be utilized. As these further calls are made, the country will be further called as men can be utilized.

I now wish to speak of the N.P.A.M. itself. Some N.P.A.M. units are being called up for active service, others have been, but whether as mobilized or not, all N.P.A.M. infantry units are now authorized to recruit up to full strength. This is not C.A.S.F.

Canada's troops went overseas fully equipped with Lewis machine guns, and the training centres in Canada, that we have considered it possible to give to United Kingdom troops in sufficient numbers to meet the requirements in two types in later months. In the meantime, the supply of our own requirements is flowing in rapidly.

All troops proceeding overseas have been equipped with anti-gas respirators, and the defence of our country has been similarly equipped. Respirators are being supplied in sufficient numbers to ensure an adequate supply for all our requirements, and a substantial amount of the material for our production for Allied troops.

GERMANY, ITALY PLAN TO SETTLE BALKAN PROBLEM

By HENRY T. GORRELL
British United Press Exclusive Cable
The London Bulletin

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 30.—Negotiations are to be started soon by Rumania, Hungary and Bulgaria in an attempt to settle their territorial disputes and at the same time, under German-Italian guidance, halt any further Russian penetration into the Balkans. It was reported in well informed quarters.

Rumania now has made public its willingness to concede a moderate amount of territory to both Hungary and Bulgaria.

It was said in official circles that Rumania was reconciled to these concessions as the most effective means of preventing the spread of Communism through the Balkans and insuring the maintenance of peace.

Diplomatic quarters interpreted this as a sign of a new policy of Rumania, which had been reported that Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, not having opposed Russia's occupation of Bessarabia and Northern Bukovina and its absorption of the Baltic republics, now decided to build a barrier against further expansion westward by Russia, and to this end would co-operate of all Danubian states.

A barrier against Russian expansion, however, was not the only German domination in this area. It was reported that in order to make sure of a supply of oil and gas from Rumania, Germany intended to make every effort to settle the Balkan territorial disputes.

Overseas Divisions Forming Nucleus of Canadian Army Corps

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 30.—Less than a year after the outbreak of hostilities two divisions of Canadian troops will form the nucleus overseas of a Canadian Corps under a Canadian commander.

Defence Minister Ralston clarified the position regarding the sending of troops overseas in the House of Commons last night when he said Canada will shortly have a corps of two complete divisions and ancillary troops in Britain and that for the present no troops in addition to these would be sent there.

Col. Ralston's statement does not mean the corps under the command of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton will consist exclusively of these Canadian troops or that when and if the war takes a different turn additional troops will not be sent from Canada to form part of this corps or other formations.

MOSTLY CANADIAN
When General McNaughton's promotion to corps commander was announced some time ago it was stated his command would consist of the 1st division which he led in England last December and some British formations which would be replaced by Canadian formations later.

Part of the division is now in England and the intention is to place the whole of it there. When it is there the corps will be over 100,000 men strong. Canadian troops still form part of the 1st division.

The 2nd division, now under the command of Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., has had a division in England. It is fully equipped and in recent months has been practising with tactics suitable to defensive operations against a German invasion.

IN AREA OF BATTLE
The Canadian Corps in the last war started its divisions during the battle of the Somme. It was the first Canadian division to be sent to France. Now it is the "island fortress" of the Canadian Corps.

This joined with the 1st Division which was already battle-tested after more than six months in the front, and the Canadian Corps was formed under the command of Lt.-Gen. Sir E. H. A. Alderson, English officer who had commanded the 1st Division troops from their arrival in England in the fall of 1914.

Thus 13 months after the outbreak of the first Great War a Canadian Corps came into being and 11 months after the outbreak of this war another Canadian Corps is coming into being starting as joint British-Canadian organization under Canadian command.

Man Has Narrow Death Escape As He Falls In Well
Narrow escape from death or serious injury was experienced over the week-end by W. Perrott, 5667 103 avenue, who accidentally fell into an abandoned well while picking berries with his wife 10 miles north of the city.

The man, who suffered painful abrasions on both arms and skin tears on the body as well as sprained leg and hip muscles, dropped through a rotten board in the well, which had been thrown over the well.

A large man, Perrott probably owes his life to this fact. He literally became stuck in the hole of the well, after dropping down four or five feet. He was able to pull himself to the top by his own efforts.

Speed, Accuracy Climbs As Typing Contestants Take Second Test Here

Twelve racing typewriters leaped into a surge of speed at Alberta College Monday night in the second round of elimination tests to find Edmonton's representative on the Canadian Typing team for the International Typewriting Marathon at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

Scenes of speed and accuracy climbed high above the records of the first test, held last Friday, and tonight's winner, who was the city's winner in 1939, showed her heels to the other contestants. All were well matched, but the first round was not enough to be out of danger for the final competition Wednesday night.

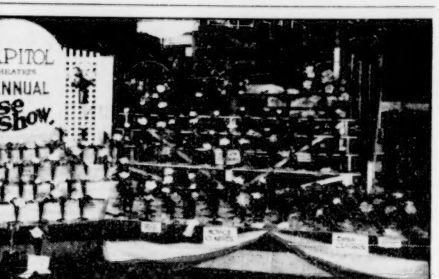

Gracie's speed on speed in words per minute on 10-minute tests, were: Gladys Harper, 106; Sylvia M. Wilson, 80; Margaret G. Noss, 79; Gladys Harper, 77; Carol Hutchinson, 77; Mrs. D. R. Hall, 73; Winnie Hudson, 70; Volberg, 69; Helen Cusack, 67; Julie Holychuk, 57; Irene Johnston, 55.

Dorothy Van Velsom, who was last year's runner-up and would have been the alternate on the Canadian team if Miss H. H. had been unable to attend, made her first appearance Monday night but did not turn in her test paper. Miss H. H. did not turn her paper in on Friday.

Although net scores were not computed immediately, Mrs. Hall showed the highest accuracy, with Julie Holychuk second and Gladys Harper, third.

Public Invited
The Wednesday night test will be held in the large brick building of Alberta College, on Macdonald drive, and the public is invited to see the contest.

Entry forms for those who wish to enter are published on this page of today's Bulletin.

Summer Theatre Is Laugh-Filled Story Of Eternal Triangle

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOHNNY REGAN—A young man
JEAN REYNOLDS—His childhood sweetheart
NOLA TRAVERS—An actress
ACTING
THE TIME—Summer, 1940
THE PLACE—Edmonton
CHAPTER I
JOHNNY REGAN'S hand, jingling the coins in the pocket of his bush coat, closed suddenly over Jean Reynolds' last letter.

He took it out and read it again, trying to form in his mind a polite reply, something saying firmly that he thought she was a swell girl but that they had both better give up the idea of orange blossoms, wedding bells and a two-room apartment in Boston. He would tell her he intended spending the summer on the Cape, keeping shop for his friend, Ned Walters, while Ned was in Canada. Perhaps, here on their old stamping ground he would be able to survey his life, to find out what had happened to their love affair.

But Jean's impulsive, upright spirit staring up at him from the beautifully monogrammed stationery didn't help matters.

"Darling," the word, "What on earth happened? Did it turn out, as you say, don't grow on bushes? Not one 1936 graduate in 700 could have walked into a job as good as the one he offered you. But you don't have to take his old job, if you don't want to. I told him to go to bat for you as usual. I love you so terribly. But for you to leave without a word to me. That hurt, truly it did..."

Johnny crumpled the note and threw it into the empty grate. He went to the door of his shop and looked out on the clean street of his old home town, waiting for the guile dipping like graceful waves in the sky. Why had he come to Cape Cod, of all places? The days, where he and Jean had spent summer after summer, playing beach games, swimming, and the reminder of something they had shared.

Ticket to Hollywood

By W. H. PEARLS

FRANCIE turned, sobbing. "Take to him, Pops. I want to go to Hollywood." John Weston took his daughter's hand, a look of relief breaking over his face. "Good girl, Francie," he murmured, and led her swiftly out of the studio into the warm California night.

Francie felt faint. She was vaguely conscious of the lights of Hollywood, swirling by the window, and then they were at the hospital.

As they approached Gusty's room, a gray-haired doctor met them. "Are you, Sugar?" She nodded. "You can go right in. He's been calling for you. He's waiting." Gusty was a white, still figure on the bed. His eyes were closed. His breathing came with an effort.

Francie crossed to him softly. A cold weight pressed against her heart as she bent over him. "Gusty," she said, then added in a whisper, "dear."

He stirred, his low moan escaped his lips. "Where's Sugar?" he muttered. "I want to see her. I want to give her the ticket. He fumbled with the covers. "Where's my wallet? I want Francie to have it."

"Oh, Gusty..." She pressed her cheek against his. "I—I've got the ticket."

He sighed, threw back his arm. "Where's Francie?" "I'm right here, Gusty." Francie was crying, and the theatrical make-up ran down her face in streams. "Please open your eyes and look at me."

His light came up slowly. His eyes, lighted, restless, fire, groped for her hand. "Hullo, Sugar," he said with an effort.

"Gusty! Oh, I'm so glad you know me. You're going to be all right. You're going to get well. Aren't you, dear?"

The shadow of a grin flickered across his set face. Gusty said weakly, "Darn right, Sugar." Then he went to sleep.

Francie held his hand until the doctor came and motioned her outside. "Your boy friend has a very solid constitution," he smiled. "I wouldn't plan any funeral yet."

Francie and Gusty were sitting on the hotel veranda when Mr. Weston joined them.

He said, "Well, Gusty, I've finally settled matters. I've been talking with one of the studio executives. He admits they were at fault for not checking your qualifications more carefully before letting you smash that car."

"Are they going to pay Gusty?" Francie asked.

"Well, in that," Mr. Weston replied. "They're standing all hospital expenses and giving Gusty $100 in cash. And, would it be, he can have a job showing props around. How does that sound, Gusty?"

"Sweet!" After six days Gusty's grin was still wan. "I can sure use the money."

"And the job? It will put you in contact with some pretty important musicians. That's your ambition, isn't it? To play with some big outfit?"

"Well, yes, Mr. Weston, but, gee, I hooked my trumpet!"

"You can easily unhook it," John Weston smiled at his daughter. Hand clasped in Gusty's, and his eyes smiled. "Well, it's up to you, son. At any rate, you're not broke."

He faded discreetly from the veranda. Gusty and Francie sat for a while in silence.

Francie said, "It's a grand opportunity, Gusty. Play a right. You can know everyone important and be sure you'll get a real break. More doing music for pictures or something."

"Well, Gusty said, "I guess so."

"Well, you don't assume very happy over it," Francie said, her eyes hopeful.

"You know what, Francie?" Gusty said suddenly. "It was pretty big, wasn't it? You threw away your big chance to come to me. Why'd you do it?"

Francie blushed. "Why'd you send your wallet to me? Gusty, I'm ashamed about that day in Mr. Keen's office. Can you ever forgive me?"

"Aw, I didn't blame you. I looked like hell."

More silence. Hollywood sunshine hit warm and yellow about them. Long-bladed palms stirred in the breeze. The city stretched out and Gusty and Francie gazed against its backdrop of hills.

"Pretty here, isn't it?" Gusty said.

Francie's heart ached silently. Gusty liked it. He was going to stay. Some day, Gusty would read in the Elpheth City Bugle about how he had signed a big movie contract.

"Yes," she said tearlessly, "it's pretty."

"Prettier than Elpheth City?" he probed.

"I—I guess so."

Gusty nodded. "Well, I suppose if this is where you want to live I'd better take the job."

"Ah," Francie said. "I—I don't understand, Gusty."

"Well, holly smoke, do I have to draw you a diagram? Look, Francie, what happened when I got hanged up? I started yelling for you and wanting you to have the ticket. What did you do? Why, you tossed away your big chance to come to the hospital!"

Francie said, "Gusty, you mean, it's darn funny, ain't it?"
